

Obligation to declare domicile address (3/49/20)

Under the Constitution every individual legally staying in the territory of Latvia is free to travel and choose a domicile. The domicile is a place freely chosen by the person and linked to real estate - the address the person will reside at and be reachable in their legal relationship with the state and the municipality. We are increasingly hearing questions such as who is required to declare their domicile address in Latvia, why and when. This article provides answers to these and other questions.
