

Tax authority's initiative in fighting shadow economy: what else there is to know about letters asking for account turnover details 3/44/24

In August we wrote about the State Revenue Service's plans to begin sending out notifications in September asking people to review their income and report it in full. This is one of the steps the SRS is taking as part of the plan to fight the shadow economy. In this article we will look at how this initiative is happening in practice and what is worthy of attention.
